Support and RMA information

Please note, the latest version of this guide can be found on Micromedia Online. If you print the guide, your version may not be up to date.

Introduction

Please note, the latest version of this guide can be found on Micromedia Online. If you print the guide, your version may not be up to date.

The information in this guide will help you efficiently request a return for faulty products. For most brands, you can contact Micromedia in case of any faults. We will then handle the processing with the supplier for you. For other brands, this is arranged differently at the request of the brand. In such cases, we will be happy to help you find the right method for this.

The first section lists the general return rules Micromedia applies and then the Micromedia contact information by subject. The second chapter lists the brands in alphabetical order. For each brand, it describes how you or the consumer reach the brand's support in the event of a defect report and the subsequent return or repair process, if any, for that brand.

A brand with an * has different return rules from the standard procedure used by Micromedia.

The list of brands is subject to change at any time. If you have a defect of a brand you bought from us but which is not listed in this guide, please contact our RMA department via email.

1 General rules for defective products

You have sold a product to consumers that turns out to be defective (becomes defective). The consumer asks you for a solution.

1.1 Ask for support first

Most common defects can be solved by the brand's helpdesk. Most brands solve these problems for consumers faster than you and we can. With some brands, it is even necessary, that your customer contacts the helpdesk of the respective brand first. After agreement from the helpdesk, you and we can handle it further for the consumer. Support desk contact information, where available, is listed for each brand.

1.2 Request rules for defects

Below are the standard request rules used by Micromedia.

1.2.1 Request

You must submit a completed Micromedia RMA form to receive an RMA approval. This form can be requested from your contact. You can also find it on www.micromedia.eu/benelux/en/.

The following are important when submitting a return request:

- The item must have been purchased from Micromedia. Any exceptions to this rule are listed with the relevant brand.
- The item must be demonstrably defective.
- The defect must be clearly defined.
- Proof of purchase from the consumer must be sent with the return request, containing at least the following information: clear item description or EAN code, and date of purchase.
- If applicable, the serial number of the defective item should be specified.

Note! If the form is not filled in completely, we cannot unfortunately process your request.

1.2.2 Agreement or rejection

Within a few working days, you will receive a response to your request at the e-mail address you provided.

Upon approval, you will be assigned an RMA number for the products that are approved.

If (part of) your request is rejected, the reason for rejection will be stated.

Note! The RMA number issued is valid for 2 weeks. This means that products for which an RMA number has been issued must be delivered to Micromedia postage paid within 14 days of this number being issued.

1.2.3 Transport

If you have received an RMA agreement, you must enclose this agreement with your shipment. You shall bear the risk and expense of sending the return.

Note! Defective products must be sent in full (including all supplied accessories, cables, etc.) unless otherwise stated.

If a product is delivered incomplete or incorrectly, Micromedia may not process this item and return it at your expense and risk.

1.2.4 Crediting

Upon receipt and processing of the return by Micromedia, you will receive a credit invoice for your current purchase price.

1.3 ESD and POSA Software

This concerns all software, delivered digitally by Micromedia.

1.3.1 ESD and POSA Support

Your customer can be directed to the support department of the respective brand with questions about the software. Reseller support for all ESD and POSA software is through esd.support@micromedia.eu.

1.3.2 ESD and POSA Return rules

ESD and POSA software cannot be returned unless otherwise specified in your portal.

Resellers ROBO website: <https://robo.partners.extranet.microsoft.com/>

Return rules for defects

- DOA = Dead on arrival or 30 days after purchase by the consumer the item is defective
- - For accessories that are DOA, the consumer's purchase receipt is required and you can otherwise follow Micromedia's return rules. (Chapter 1)

- Defective accessories, Typecovers, consoles, Surfaces (laptops) and software may only be returned directly through Microsoft. Micromedia cannot accept returns of these.

ROBO scheme (Return On Behalf Of)

If your customer does not want to contact Microsoft support itself, as a reseller you can still do so via Microsoft's ROBO portal. This only applies to Surface, Surface type covers and Bands (smartwatch) under warranty.

For all other items, your customer will have to follow the procedure through the Myservice sites mentioned above.

See the appendix ROBO training guide for an explanation of how the Microsoft ROBO portal works.

E-mail: support@nextlevelracing.com

The support desk can also provide you with replacement parts.

Return rules for defects

Gaming chairs and cockpits

For gaming chairs and cockpits, parts can be sent to you or your customer for replacement.

To do so, send an e-mail to customersupport@micromedia.eu. The email should contain at least the following information to provide you with quick service:

- MM part number or EAN
- Which part is faulty + a photo
- The consumer's purchase receipt (the GDPR asks you to mask consumer data)

If the part is not available separately, this will be notified and you can still submit an RMA request.

Motion platforms

Your customer needs to contact the helpdesk themselves before you and we can help. This is also stated in the manual provided.

Should the support desk be unable to fix the problem, they will issue an agreement to request the item's return to Micromedia. This agreement from the support desk should be sent along with the fully completed RMA request.
